* Important Disclaimer:

You may activate any device that has been certified by Flash Wireless to be compatible with our service, including, if you are a Flash Wireless (v) customer, certain devices not purchased directly from Flash Wireless. If you did not purchase your device from Flash Wireless, please be aware that certification of a device for use on the Flash Wireless network does not mean that Flash Wireless has made any determination as to the function, call quality or other functionality provided by the device. The device provider is solely responsible for the representations of its product function, functionality, pricing and service agreements. Flash Wireless does not in any way warrant that the certified device: (a) will operate or operate without error on the network (including the network of any other carrier accessed while roaming or otherwise), or with available Flash Wireless branded products and services; (b) will operate without the need for periodic upgrades or modifications to the certified device; (c) will operate indefinitely on the network; (d) will not be subject to service disruptions or interruptions due to government regulation, system capacity, coverage limitations, radio signal interference or other anomalies; or (e) will not be adversely affected by network-related modifications, upgrades or similar activity. Also, you should contact the device provider from whom you purchased the device for questions about its operations and capabilities. Flash Wireless does not provide support for, and representatives may not be able to troubleshoot operational difficulties encountered with, devices not purchased from Flash Wireless. For more applicable terms and disclaimers see the Flash Wireless Terms & Conditions.
